Marlango's fourth record, Life in the treehouse, is conceived as a window of emotions, with compositions based on complex ingredients, in appearance simple. Life in the treehouse includes eleven songs with soft melodies with a touch of sophistication and drenched in a strangely enjoyable melancholy and sadness, full of Marlango's characteristic, serene and wise joie-de-vivre. What makes the sound of this band even more seductive in this record is its barefaced fragility. A record to listen to without haste, paying attention to the incredible detail and love poured into it. Songs that will stop your heart. Sensitivity for these insensitive times. Elegance, seduction, excellence... these are some of the most frequent terms used to describe this trio who turned their love for Tom Waits and vocal jazz into a passion.
