Miguel Poveda's career has not ceased to develop and dazzle since he won the Lámpara Minera award in 1993. The Badalona-born cantaor shows an unusual interest in opening up flamenco to other audiences through his constant experimentation, combining his art without reservations with other genres such as cinema (B. Luna's The Tit and the Moon, C. Saura's Fados, P. Almodóvar's Broken Embraces...), theatre (C. Bieito's version of Life is a Dream) and collaborations with artists of all kinds. This relationship with other creative spheres, his quality and versatility earned him the National Music Award in 2007 as best performer. He is now revising his musical career and presents Coplas del querer, Latin Grammy to the best flamenco record in 2009, where the cantaor revises classic coplas with modern arrangements.
