Dr. John is one of the few pianists, as well as a singer and composer, with a New Orleans blues tradition. Famous especially for his 1973 hit "Right place, wrong time", Dr. John's music includes, and often combines, blues, boogie woogie, rock'n'roll, the hottest rhythm & blues and jazz with a whole lot of swing.

Since the disaster of hurricane Katrina, Dr. John has remained active and has strived, like never before, to take the message of music to the masses. Especially sensitive to lyricism and rhythmic possibilities, he is virtually a guidebook on how to perform standards in the 21st century: with respect for the creativity and sophistication of the originals but adding to the music some nightclub atmosphere and a sound that makes people get up and dance.
