Bonsais, stones, water games, "lost steps", zen references and other elements of a Japanese garden appear in a work of landscape miniaturisation and reconstruction through a coded system of symbols and metaphors. CCC is a virtual itinerary through five small gardens that invite individual or group exploration: meadows, a river, a bridge, flowers and the sea; environments home to a type of theatre based on perception, playful and sound relationships between the natural elements. The gardens (formed by images projected on a white carpet fitted with pressure sensors) suggest games creating an interactive contact through the visual poetry of the images and the sounds, animated in real time. The public is free to choose how to relate with them. There are no rules, times or rigid interpretational schemes. CCC is a natural-digital environment conceived to give theatrical value to movement and spontaneous action. An imaginary journey and an exciting sensorial experience.

Interactive theatre in immersive environments. TPO was founded in 1981 as a visual theatre company, with proposals for children conceived as moving pictures, using different artistic elements, mechanical devices and light games. Since 1999, TPO has explored the use of digital graphics, combining theatre with other artistic disciplines such as dance and video-art.
