What happens when you come across someone who is different? Monocromo tells, in an amusing and magical manner, the story of two persons who only see the world their way. The story of two persons who only see the world in their color. For one of them, the world is blue. For the other, it's yellow. They are overcome by fear of the unknown, but as they spend more time together they begin to relax... and something happens that will change everything. At that moment a new manner of looking at the world appears.

Monocromo is a show in which theatre of gestures, magic and music speak of the importance of respect and tolerance for the unknown, for what is new and different. Diversity is a fortress that can make us grow, and this show invites us to embrace it.

Tuttilifamili was created in Granada in 2012 with the objective of investigating with theatre of gestures, magic and music as resources to tell stories. Monocromo is their third show, in which they talk about respect and tolerance for the unknown, remaining faithful to their special manner of telling stories.
