The union of two great musicians, the Cuban pianist Daniel Amat and the double bassist from Malaga Francis Posé, together with the collaboration of the Argentinian drummer Andrés Litwin, resulted in Hermano, their first project and joint album. They are currently preparing the next one. Original compositions of the two musicians in which their roots merge, intertwine...join forces. A range of Latino and flamenco harmonies, rhythms and colours.

The Daniel Amat/Francis Posé 'Hermano' team has performed concerts and on tour at Spain's most famous festivals, concert halls and clubs. Its members have an extended career as session musicians accompanying many national and international jazz artists and others, with whom they have made a large number of recordings.
