Two young trolls hear about the “Order of the transgressive librarians“ whose secret mission is to conserve books (librairos in their particular dialect) and try to keep them from disappearing. In the forest of letters, they come across two members of this singular order, and with them will discover the value of words and the power of imagination. They will discover letters, learn to compose words, and with these, stories.
Books contain all the wisdom of the world, which entertains or surprises us, but above all, which teaches us that “the more we know, the less we fear”.
