On a winter afternoon, a little girl was trying to fend off the cold and the wind to get home. Someone observed her from above: the Sun's son, who was in charge of the change of seasons. He quickly came down to help her, and decided he would give her a flower. However, he was greatly surprised when he realised he could not because of the weather! Finally, the sun's son made friends with the little girl…with the help of determination, effort and creativity.
