Palmira and Jenaro, who are in their 70's, are expecting their son's visit during a memorable night of insomnia. The son, an expat foreign aid worker, arrives with the intention of taking them to live with him so that he can take care of them properly, as they deserve. However, this is going to unleash a conflict for the couple, who seek to defend their space but at the same time feel useless in this society of profit. In the meantime, outside, in life, the world has gone mad.
