As a result of an accident a wealthy aristocrat becomes quadriplegic and hires a marginalised young man just out of prison to be his caregiver. Tired of caregivers who treat him with pity or condescendence, what he likes about this one is that he feels no compassion for his boss. Two worlds that initially clash but end up understanding each other. Two persons who do not find in the other what they want, but rather what they really need. A friendship that is an improbable and unexpected as it is definitive; and comedy that stems from the opposition between the two and their eccentric life together.
