Chavela Vargas , the Costarican singer whose performances submerge us in the dark, deep intimacy of the soul from which we emerge pure and free, is the main character of this play with songs performed live. As she herself said on many occasions, "In thirty years I drank all the tequila in the world...", which is why they stopped offering her contracts. She stopped drinking when she was about seventy years old. Out of love. Forever. El último trago shows the hours in which she finally made the decision that changed her life. Little by little, through her songs she discovers what she needs, in a magical psychological process that makes her vulnerable and awakens the tenderness that gives way to love.
