For many people, public ornamental fountains are places to find inspiration, to rest, to work or to simply spend a few moments of tranquillity. For animals, they are places where they can find refuge, company and food. But some strange beings that live amongst us have turned fountains into their dens.
A show without words that addresses the issue of water and animal pollution caused by plastic waste.
With more than 30 years of experience, Angeles de Trapo's family theatre company is known for the professional quality of its shows and desire to innovate and surprise the audience, breaking the moulds of puppet theatre.
